Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Saturday 20 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Mostly dry and fine.

This Evening and Tonight:
A little light rain and drizzle over Scotland moving southwards across some other parts. Otherwise, largely dry with variable cloud and clear spells. Longer clear periods developing over Scotland where a rural frost is likely.

Sunday:
Early cloud in the south and west breaking by afternoon, though a few light showers are possible. Dry elsewhere with sunny spells, and feeling quite warm in light winds.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Dry on Monday with some bright or sunny spells, although cloudier in the northwest. Turning more unsettled thereafter, with rain moving erratically southeast across the UK on Tuesday and Wednesday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.